Danger in Cell Phones

Cell phones can be very dangerous, but can be safe and useful at the same time. Many cell phone privileges are being abused to the max through social media. Cell phone use is even causing motor vehicle wrecks. Cell phones have even been proven to cause different types of cancer. Cell phones are ruining our society. However they do give us some good as well as bad.

Cell phones are a big issue when it comes to social media. Mainly people are abusing the privilege of having social media. Today many young adults are using social media such as Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, and snapchat that they access through their cell phones. Also many of those teens are abusing the privilege of having social media. Some young adults choose to cyberbully others. Not only are teens being cyberbullied, many are deciding to take their own lives. There is a big problem with social media cyberbullying. I think with social media causing this big problem in the United States the government really should do something about it.

Suicide in the United States is the third most leading cause of young adult deaths. Over 1,000 young people commit suicide every each day. Every two hours and eleven minutes a person under twenty-five years of age commit suicide. California has even been noted for having the highest rate of suicides per year. While research on dosomething.org it states “ Only 1 in 10 victims will inform a parent or trusted adult of their abuse.” Also it states “ Bullying victims are 2 out of 9 times more likely to consider committing suicide.” Social media is a big deal with young adults, and anyone with a cell phone can join any social networking.

Today, the use of cell phones are causing many automobile wrecks. Driving and on your cell phone is a very big problem. Many young adults are dying in car wrecks while on their cell phone. Today young adults seem to be very concerned with their cell phones instead of the road while driving. Most of the time you can just turn on the news and most likely there will be a new case of a new car accident. Even though being on your cell phone while driving is illegal many people do not follow it and break this law all the time. Heck, police even break the law and go on their cell phones. The law should be enforced. There are too many automobile wrecks every year. According to the asirt.org website “Nearly 1.3 million people die in road crashes each year, on an average 3,287 deaths a day. An additional 20-50 million are injured or disabled.” “ According to that same cite, road crashes are the ninth leading cause of death of adults aged 15-44.” Everyone must know that cell phones are very dangerous, especially when used while driving. Young adults today in my opinion need to be more aware of the consequences of texting and driving. Is texting while driving really worth putting your life in danger and getting injured or even killed? No. We need to be more aware of the choices we make.

Today teens with cell phones are seeming to only pay attention to their phones. They are neglecting their parents and not spending any time with their families. A person can do many things with cell phones, and young adults seem to be focused on that. Many are not caring about their school work. Some students are choosing to be on their cell phones instead of doing homework. Or even choosing to make bad decisions and cheating on tests or quizzes. They are able to take pictures of their test/quiz and send it to one of their peers or even text a friend and ask for the answers. Cell phones are definitely not great for young adults to have. Young adults often abuse the ability of having a cell phone. We need to be smarter about what we do with our cell phones. Before we make bad decisions and do not spend time with our families and stay on our cell phones, we should realize that our family is much more important than any old cell phone. Cell phones are in fact an issue and dangerous.. If you a teen who is always on your cell phone it can really ruin your family relationship.

Other people may say that cell phones are a bad thing. Also may say that it is our decision what we do with our cell phones. However, cell phones aren't only bad. They can be good too. If you were in a serious situation where you were in danger you could call for help. Cell phones could also help if you needed to be in contact with you parents as soon as possible. Cell phones could also help if you work better while listening to music, you could download music onto your cell phone and get your work done faster. Also with having a cell phone and listening to music you can stay concentrated without having any distractions. Having possession of a cell phone can be good at times. Not nearly as good as they are bad though. Cell phones can be used to keep us safe in certain circumstances. If you were kidnapped, you could call 911 for help. Also, if you were lost, you could GPS your location and get back on the track you need to be on to get to your destination.

Although cell phones are mostly bad, they are some what good too. Personally, I think cell phones are more bad than they are good. Cell phones give some good use and also more bad use. They contribute to risky and dangerous activities. I think we should wait until an appropriate time to give young adults cell phones because of all the bad things that could happen. I think we should wait for these young adults to get more mature before giving them the big responsibility of owning a cell phone. Plus on the bright side parents can save some cash instead of paying a monthly bill if they choose to delay that opportunity.
